Electric Car Line for Cadiz—Sudden Death.
—Jones Meeting Coming—Tobacco Burns Ruined—The Fair this Month.

The Coming Fair.

The Christian County fair this year coming as it does late, being the third week in October, gives everyone an opportunity of attending. The crops will all be in, tobacco housed, wheat seeded, and the farmers will experience a few days of leisure, and there could be no better way to spend the time than in attending their county fair. The promise for fine displays in all the various departments was never better, the secretary having had numerous inquiries regarding dates, list of premiums, speed rings, etc. In addition to the fine display of stock before the grand stand there will on each day be offered first class sport in speed rings. On the first day the green trot, for horses with no track training or record, to be owned in either Christian, Trigg or Todd counties, and to be driven by their owners, should prove an interesting feature, as there are many fine roadsters in the counties named the prospects are good for many years of this race. Besides this there will be bicycle and pony racing during the day. On the second day comes the three minute trot for 3-year-olds, the 2-40 trot and 3-minute pace, all of which should tend to draw large crowds on that day. There will also be a boys' bicycle race on the same day for boys under sixteen years of age, half mile heats, two in three, which will doubtless bring out a large field of youngsters. The principal features of the last day's program will be a running race, half mile heats, two in three and a free-for-all trot or pace. The latter being a combined race, will bring out the fastest motters of the meeting.

Surgical Operation Performed.

HOWELL, Sept. 30.—Dr. Braudon, of Clarksville, assisted by Dr. Haynes of this place, and Dr. Kenner, of Beverly, successfully amputated a leg of Miss Katie Wood, the 15-year-old daughter of Mr. J. B. Wood on last Thursday.

Miss Katie received a fall in early childhood which permanently injured her leg, from which she has suffered ever since, especially during the winter months when her suffering was severe and as a means of relief the operation was performed. She is at present recovering rapidly from the operation and will soon be entirely well unless some unforeseen complications set in.

The physicians who performed the operation deserve credit for the successful character of their work.

The Cadiz Electric Line.

A movement is on foot looking to the early building of an electric car line from Cadiz to Gracely, to connect with the O. V. and L. & N. roads. It is understood that a number of Cadiz capitalists favor the scheme and there is but little doubt about the proposed line being built at no distant date. The road could be built and well equipped for $100,000, and it is likely that citizens along the proposed line would take considerable interest in the stock. Cadiz is a fine business place and all she needs is an outlet to the world, when she would rank second to none of the smaller cities in Western Kentucky.

A Very Sad Case.

Lucretia Chaffin, an old colored woman, died quite suddenly Sunday in the city. She had been in usual health and on getting out of bed, fell and died almost instantly. Coroner J. L. Allenworth held an inquest and the verdict of the jury was to the effect that death was caused by strangulation as a result of an attack of phtisis. She was 70 years old.

Jones' Meeting Next Sunday.

The third meeting of Rev. Sam Jones in Hopkinsville will begin next Sunday Oct. 6, without fail. Mr. Jones will be assisted by Rev. Geo. Stewart and by Rev. J. B. Culpender. The music will be conducted by Prof. Excell. The meeting will be at the tabernacle and will last ten days or more.

Three Tobacco Barns Burned.

Nick M. Tehell, a cropper on W. B. Hobgood's farm near Nebo, lost a barn of tobacco containing about 2,500 pounds. Buck Vandy, of the Nebo country, lost a big frame barn containing about 10,000 pounds of fine tobacco. Charles Hibbs, of the Nebo country, lost his entire crop, 3,000 or 4,000 pounds—Madisonville Hustler.

Lost His Crop of Tobacco.

Geo. Killbrow, of Otter Pond, on the O. V., lost a barn containing 6,000 pounds of tobacco by fire Friday. He had filled the barn and was firing when the top of the building caught fire. His loss is estimated at $600; no insurance.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Mostly Judgement Cases Tried Last Week.

Very few cases have been disposed of in court that are of special interest to the public. Following is a summary of the business transacted:

Jim Jordan, seduction, dismissed.
Lula Thompson, col., bawdy house, verdict "not guilty."

Bill Howell, assault and battery, fined $5 and costs.

W. C. Railroad Company, failing to provide water closet at Pembroke, fined $250 and costs. In the case against the same company for failing to erect a closet at Crofton attorneys for defendant filed a petition duly signed by the Governor and the prosecution was dismissed.

Adam Davis, col., c. d. w., fined $25 and costs in jail.

Gilbert Reese, c. d. w., dismissed.
Abel Willis, col., hog stealing, same.

Several parties were fined for selling liquor to an inebriate, and in some of these cases they were found not guilty.

John Carter, affray and c. d. w., dismissed.

Rich Brum, gaming, same.

W. C. Hewlett, gaming, fined $25.

Bill Dupey, col., same, same.

Geo. Carter, col., same, same.

Several other cases of gaming were submitted and defendants were each fined $5 and costs.

Wepockets at Bowling Green.

There was a gang of pickpockets at the fair grounds at Bowling Green last week that made it lively for the unwary citizen. It will never be known just how many people were robbed, but there were a large number and there many complaints to the police. About two dozen special policemen were on duty to assist the regular force, but the thieves managed in some way to "go through" the large crowd with great success. It is said that thousands of dollars were secured from the unsuspecting.

Indictments Returned.

Yesterday the grand jury returned the following true bills:

Jim Kline, col., wilful murder.

Wilson Reed, col., petit larceny.

Joe Crowder, Dave O'Neal and Chas. Griffey, all col., robbery.

Eugene Trace, col., horse stealing.

The Kline case is set for the 19th day of the term. He is charged with the killing of W. V. Adams, an L. & N. section foreman, near Gracely, Aug. 24.

As Old Wound Causes Death.

John Cole, a young man about thirty years of age, died at his home in Eliton last week from a gunshot wound he received in his left arm thirteen years ago. Young Cole learned the printer's trade while a boy, and when he was able would set type with one hand, as his wounded arm was of no use to him whatever. The young man was a son of the late Sam Cole, well known in this city.

Working on a Rush.

Tobacco growers are rushing their work to get the new crop into the house to save it from frost. It is estimated that two-thirds of the weed has already been housed and with fair weather for a few more days all of the crop will be over the fire, and will soon be ready for the market. In some sections farmers are making it difficult to secure additional labor during this busy season.

Seabee & Evans Stock Sale.

The big stock sale of Seabee & Evans came off near Trenton Thursday and the crowd that attended was the largest ever seen at a sale in the county. A nice barbequed dinner was served and everybody got plenty to eat. The sale was a grand success and everything sold brought fair prices. Among other stock over 200 head of fine cattle were sold.

"Short Turner" Pardoned.

Roy Howton, who was sent to the penitentiary from Caldwell county last March for one year for hog stealing, has been pardoned by the Governor and he returned to his home near Princeton last Thursday. Howton is a brother of Hewlett Howton, who was assassinated last summer.

She Lost Her Grip.

Mrs. Stagg, wife of the L. & N. section foreman in this city, prepared to go on a visit to Tennessee. She packed her valise and placed it outside the door and returned to the house for a few moments. During her absence a thief made way with the grip, which contained a lot of clothing and several dollars in cash. The sharp thief left no clue as to his identity and it is not likely that he will ever be caught.

Another Trial Set Filed.

Eliza Crump, col., of Covington, Ky., has sued the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company for $25,000 because she was ejected from the white passenger car coach into another reserved for colored passengers.

PROCEEDINGS

OF THE CHRISTIAN COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Prof. Bartholomew, of Louisville, Ky., conductor.

EVENING SESSION.

Song: music by Miss Braham. Roll call showed 76 present. Subject: "Education." Prof. Bartholomew said in discussing this subject that the ability to concentrate the attention on any subject and to hold it there for any desired length of time was a most valuable qualification.

In order to acquire this there must be a physical basis. Persons with small physical bases have risen to intellectual heights, but these were exceptions. The great instrumentality of the mind is the human system.

A young child, for physical reasons, can not give his attention for a long period to any given subject. Adults found it difficult to do so. In the programme for primary work the time allotted for each study should be short, and there should be variety. Sometimes the child does not like to do the things you think he ought to.

It must be your duty to excite an interest. In cultivating attention much help may be derived from association. Attend to one thing at a time; let nothing else intervene. If the attention is trained, the memory will be all right.

At the request of the Superintendent Mrs. Pooler came forward and favored the Institute with a song, "Beautiful Normandy." The teachers showed their appreciation of her magnificent singing by long and loud applause. After many calls she came forward again and sang with fine effect a song entitled "Till for Tat."

The Superintendent then appointed the following teachers as a Committee on Resolutions: Misses H. H. West, U. S. Clardy, Mrs. Allen and Miss Dora Anderson. Also the following as a Committee on Neurology: J. G. Wright, W. E. Gray, Mrs. King, Miss Maude Blaine and Miss Gertrude Keith.

Miss McDaniel explained the Reading Circle work for the year. Prof. Bartholomew said a committee of which he was a member was getting up a Reading Circle for children.

Next subject taken up was "Attendance." Prof. J. T. West made a practice of visiting the parents at regular intervals, reporting any cases of tardiness or absence and talking the matter over with them.

Prof. Russell's idea was to get the patrons to visit the school—have the children on school exercises—spelling matches, debating societies, etc.

Prof. Ollie related an amusing anecdote right here. When a boy he played truant, one of the boys turned State's evidence. His father asked if he had been to school, he said yes; father called for proof, could not furnish it, his father would not strap on him. He never played truant any more.

The subject of Penmanship was introduced by Prof. J. W. P. Pool. All he said, admitted the importance of this study. Teachers very deficient here. Dr. Dineen in the way of teaching this branch, successfully many of our schools—poor desks and writing material, etc. This study makes think in importance in the common school course. Would not waste time in flourishing. Would insist on correct position; muscular movement the best.

Prof. Bartholomew would begin writing as soon as the child entered school. Developed the slanting line from a rectangle; the right and left curve from the oval. Would divide the letters into classes having certain likenesses to each other for convenience in studying them.

Prof. Cherry then gave the teachers a very interesting talk on drawing. This was accompanied by a striking blackboard illustrations. The Institute then adjourned for the day.

WEDNESDAY, August 28th, 1895.

MORNING SESSION.

Music by Prof. Pooler. Prayer and scripture reading by Rev. Nourse, of the Presbyterian Church. Roll call. Minutes read and approved. Prof. Bartholomew then addressed the Institute. Teachers did not often realize the magnitude of their calling. If there is a man who ought to have lofty conceptions of his work it is the teacher. He, too, above all other men, needs sympathy and encouragement. The expression, "A self-centered man" is often misused. All men are to a large extent self-centered. Every man must be for himself. The teacher can guide and direct his studies. He must learn for himself. There is no "Royal Road to Learning." He would represent the best of some of the teacher's qualifications. Scholarship an important one. Care needed here. The teacher must not claim to be the embodiment of all wisdom. There is a kind of scholarship that is so exalted, especially in cultivated communities. He would not undertake any professional work, but the Bible

PRESS PEOPLE.

Fortnight Points Picked Up in Passing.

The Atlanta party was made up of 86 gentlemen, 50 ladies, 16 musicians and 8 or 10 children. It was a congenial party and the trip from start to finish was a very pleasant one.

The final session was held on top of the Forestry building, under a pavilion, and after addresses of welcome, which were responded to by President I. B. Nall and Messrs. Chas. M. Meacham and Ben D. Kingo, the local resolutions of thanks were adopted and the election of officers gone into. Vice-President Jno. A. Bell was chosen president without opposition and Secretary L. W. Ginnos was re-elected by acclamation. There was a spirited contest for vice-president, which resulted in the election of Ben D. Kingo, of the Hartford Herald, over C. M. Lewis, of the Bowling Green Times. The vote stood 37 to 27 and 5 complimentary votes were cast for Bob Morningstar, who was not present.

C. E. McCormick and bride, who were married on the 23rd, and T. N. Black and bride, who were married on the 24th, made the trip with the party. Mr. McCormick is editor of the Bullitt Pioneer and Mr. Black of the Lexington Bee.

Editors A. J. Casey, of Owensboro, J. S. Lewis, of Sevierville and W. P. Scott, of Central City, had their babies along and the little fellows behaved themselves admirably and were the pets of the whole party.

Most of the party stopped in Atlanta at the Oriental Hotel, a brand new house just opened on Pryor and Peachtree streets. Those who could not get rooms there went to the Bowling Green Times and the Maron hotels, on the same square, and the whole party was therefore kept close together during the entire stay.

Editors John G. Craddock and I. B. Nall were the only "veterans of 1878" who attended the meeting this year. There were others present who were in the ranks of the Bowling Green Times, but did not attend the Hopkinsville meeting.

A clandestine Marriage.

News of a clandestine marriage that occurred eight months ago has just come out at Kirkmansville, 18 miles from this city. On the 21st of last January Miss Carrie Grace, only daughter of Frank Grace, and Tom Sullivan came to this city saying they were going to make a short visit to Miss Birtie Grady, of Morton's Gap, a young lady who had been visiting Miss Grace. Instead of going to Morton's Gap, they went over to Nashville and were married the same day. They returned the next day and went to their respective homes, and the matter was kept a profound secret until last Thursday.

Mr. Sullivan had continued to be attentive to the young lady, who also received the attentions of other beaux. The parents finally undertook to stop Sullivan's visits, when Sullivan told them that they had been married since January and proceeded to demand his wife. Mr. Grace was telegraphed to Nashville and found that his statement was true and the parental blessing was given the young couple. Mr. Sullivan is now in the home of his father-in-law and the bride and groom are kept busy receiving congratulations. All of the parties are prominent and well-to-do. The young man is 18 years old and quite pretty. Mr. Sullivan is a young farmer and tobacco buyer.

Will Make no Changes.

Gov. Brown has rendered his decision in the matter of the domestic troubles in the Western district. He declines to move either Dr. Smith or Steward Buckner. Miss Kittie Johnson, the housekeeper, who is a niece of the Superintendent, Dr. Stone, yesterday resigned her position and left for Missouri. The Board of commissioners will hold their regular monthly meeting to-day.

Little Girl Injured.

A little two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mattie Corbitt, of Mannington, fell from a porch last Friday and fractured one of her arms very badly above the elbow. She was otherwise injured and will be confined to her bed for some time.

Child's Death Full.

A little two-year-old son of Mr. T. P. Collins fell from a porch last Thursday afternoon, a distance of fifteen feet, sustaining serious injuries. He was early taken to the hospital, but he finally died. He was very badly injured and his body was badly bruised by coming in contact with the brick pavement below.

The parade in honor of the Orphan Brigade, at Bowling Green, was the largest ever seen in that part of the state.

VALUE OF ANTITOXIN.

Some Theories of Natural and Artificial Immunity.

Diphtheria Antitoxin, Introduced Into This Country in December, 1894. Has Reduced the Mortality Record from Eighty to Forty Per Cent.

Special Chicago Letter.
They say that the horseless age is coming. But the horse is with us to stay. While electricity is taking its place as a motor agent, a new field of usefulness is opening for it—it supplies us with antitoxin.
It is an unexplored field of investigation upon which we are entering, for antitoxin, the product of the blood of the horse, has been with us scarcely a year. It was introduced into this country last December, and researches and experiments had begun in European hospitals only eleven months that time. Within this short and reliable record of cures in diphtheria and tetanus (commonly known as lockjaw) had been collected. The antitoxin had been collected. Its value had been practically demonstrated, but the principle involved remains a mystery. It is that some great, far-reaching principle is coming into light, that a new system of fighting disease, based on this principle, will be evolved—that is anticipated by all who have studied the subject. The eyes of searching investigators and profound thinkers are gleaming with the hope of solving this new system in time to add the discovery to that unrivaled galaxy of achievements which illuminates nineteenth century progress.

What is antitoxin? Antitoxin is antipolion, an antidote for poison. As the word, it means a substance developed in animal blood to neutralize the effect of toxins (poisons) of disease. How is it obtained? From the blood of immunized animals. And here we recapitulate the nature of immunity. All animal blood has been shown to possess to a greater or lesser degree of bactericidal properties. When an animal becomes infected with a disease a combat takes place, according to well-established authorities, between the germs of the disease and a mysterious something in the blood. This bactericidal property varies in power and quality in different species. Thus the blood of man offers complete resistance to germs of plague cholera, that of the dog against anthrax, of the chicken against tetanus, and so on. These animals are said to be immune against such diseases.

The important point is that the immunity against certain diseases may be transferred. This may be done in two ways—(1) by infection, or (2) by inoculation, i. e., inoculation of the disease. Every child knows that when it has one had a disease the chances are that it will not catch the same disease a second time. It has been rendered immune against that disease. A mysterious process of chemistry has taken place in the child's body, protecting it, perhaps for lifetime, perhaps for a limited period, against the germs of the disease.

The same process may be developed artificially. Inoculate the disease in mild form, and the danger of succumbing to a serious attack will be minimized. This is the principle of vaccination.

From vaccination to the use of antitoxin is but one step. Scientists have learned that an antidote to germ diseases could be formed by inoculating the disease. Why not obtain this antitoxin from an immunized animal and inject it into the blood of the patient? Investigators set about manufacturing the mysterious antidote in a systematic manner.

Diphtheria, the germ of which was discovered in 1884, was chosen as the principal subject of experiment. They proceed as follows:
With a cotton wad of a few of the germs are brushed from the tonsils of a human patient. The wad is then drawn over a mass of blood serum enclosed in a dish and the germs transferred thereon. Here they have good opportunity to feed and multiply. In twenty-four hours each germ has grown into an infected colony of germs. The culture is examined under a microscope, and those of diphtheria planted again in a sealed test tube containing beef broth. They are placed in an incubator at blood temperature, and at the end of three or altate contains the diphtheria toxin. If the toxin is found to be of sufficient strength, that is 1 c.c. of it will kill a guinea pig weighing 500 grains in forty-eight hours, 5 c.c. of the toxin is injected into the shoulder of a young and absolutely healthy horse. This will cause a reaction, and diphtheria antitoxin will form in the blood. The next time about 1 c.c. will be injected, and a correspondingly larger amount of antitoxin will form. Doses of toxin are constantly increased until the horse can bear without serious symptoms the enormous amount of 300 c.c. of toxin per injection. Some of the blood of the horse is then drawn off and put on ice for a few days to allow it to coagulate. The blood serum, i. e., the water with albuminous and saline matter in solution, possesses the anti-toxin properties and is taken off with a pipette. Its strength is tested by inoculation on diseased guinea pigs, and if one grain of the serum will neutralize one grain of the toxin, it is ready for use.

The forces of the human patient suffering with diphtheria is given a hypodermic injection of the antitoxin. If the disease is in the incipient stage one injection will generally suffice, otherwise doses must be repeated several times.

When the experiments were first begun, a number of different animals were used as mediums for the production of antitoxin. It was soon found however, that it is not the actual immunity of an animal which would be of any value when transferred to a diseased individual, but the amount of acquired immunity.

For this reason, the horse was selected as the most appropriate for the production of tetanus and diphtheria antitoxin. It is remarkably susceptible to these diseases, but shows great power of reaction, and can develop enormous quantities of antitoxin. It is a very healthy animal and the danger of inoculating with it is that the blood practically all, it can furnish immense quantities of blood, and an important point—the horse is in many respects similar to man. The best results will always be obtained by inoculation from homogen species. Goats, sheep, and other animals have been tried, but none can compare with the horse in adaptability; the horseless age is not at hand.

The tetanus, diphtheria and other antitoxins have been in use only a very few years, in our country but a few months, and then hardly ever outside of the hospitals. The evidence then collected is most astonishing. Dr. G. Fatterer, in a lecture at the Chicago polytechnic in February last, cites the following statistics of antitoxin treatment for diphtheria:

	No. of cases	Healed	Died	Per cent.
Vienna	527	54	78	29.80
Austria	33	5	13	30.30
Prussia	109	10	18	17.42
Berlin	109	10	18	17.42
Germany	109	10	18	17.42
Italy	109	10	18	17.42
Holland	109	10	18	17.42
England	109	10	18	17.42
Total	1,830	616	1,214	33.61

Since February the death rate has sunk to 14 per cent. Indeed a wonderful showing when we consider that the death rate in cases of actual diphtheria is over 80 per cent, when no antitoxin is used.

And it is not only as a curative, but also as a preventive that the great remedy may be used. Reliable cases, sufficient in number to leave no room for doubt have been reported of children who had been rendered temporarily immune by a single injection of antitoxin while in the midst of a household where diphtheria was raging. By experimenting on guinea pigs it was shown that a dose of antitoxin injected before infection requires only 1-100, sometimes 1-1000, of the strength needed when the same amount of toxin had found its way into the pig's system twenty-four hours before the antitoxin was injected.

In effect antitoxin is absolutely harmless. It sometimes produces skin eruptions, weakness and other slight symptoms in human patients, but the medicine is not considered a poison, and it cannot be in any way dangerous to the sick or the healthy. Not the slightest fear need be entertained in that regard.

What is true of diphtheria and tetanus we may infer to hold good in all germ diseases. We know that the principles of partial and total immunity oppose themselves throughout the animal kingdom; we are almost positive that this partial immunity may always be increased by infection of a disease, and we may judge by analogy that if some animal can produce properties in the blood, antitoxin to certain diseases, other animals can to find whose blood will yield the same medicine against other diseases. We believe, further, that at least all infectious diseases are germ diseases (for how else could they be infectious?), and we may justly infer that in a very few years a great, complex system of new remedies will come into use, and as fire drives out fire, the disease itself shall produce within the animal body the antidote against its virulence. We are on the

STRAIGHTENING AFRICAN KINKS

Secret of a New Orleans Woman for Straightening Vanities of Colored Hair.
"I don't use straight hair," exclaims the Caucasian beauty, and "I hate kinks," groans the fascinating lady of color. So, forthwith, the mild feminine starts out in search of ways and means to make kinks come and to make kinks go.

With glue, papillotes, plaiting and burning the ends of the straight locks endeavorers to make hair and adornment take on graceful waves, while her sister of the dusky hue dreams of the day when kinks will be under control.

In times past the lady of color was wont to divide her woolly appendage into many little tufts, which were drawn as straight as possible, and tightly wrapped with cord or shoe string. It is true this gave the head a porcupine appearance during the days of the week, but on Sunday a white plaiting and symmetrical topknot repaid the damsel for her week of suffering to be beautiful.
But nowadays, the "new woman" among the Afro-Americans cannot appear at the lecture, the woman's club or the society meeting with the heavy week-day loads of the past. "Necessity is the mother of invention," fits this case as so many others. A secret has been discovered for the straightening out the kinks, but it has been straightened out for six months at a time.

The secret is in the possession of an enterprising colored woman, who makes her home in New Orleans, and who, it is said, does a thriving business in smoothing the knotty tresses of her sisters. As she gets five dollars a head, and there is no lack of trade, this kink specialist has a veritable bonanza.
In this one respect, at least, the dark-skinned would-be beauty has the advantage of the pale-faced belle, who aspires to rippling hair. While the former has to undergo hair manipulation but once in six months the latter's locks have to suffer daily treatment.

A DISCOURTEOUS LAWYER.

He Did Not Act Like a Gentleman from Virginia.

In Kentucky an unfortunate merchant saw bankruptcy confronting him, and to save a portion of his property he invoked the name of his wife and the assistance of a friend. The creditors instituted proceedings to recover certain property, and in the course of the proceedings his friend, a native of Virginia, was put upon the stand. All went well, says the Louisville Post, until the witness was subjected to a rigid cross-examination by a lawyer, himself a native of Virginia. The witness went blundering along at such a rate that his lawyer felt it necessary to interfere and tell him that he was not required to answer questions which would eliminate himself.

After the close of the trial, which resulted disastrously for our recommended friend from Virginia, he expressed indignation at the humiliation to which he had been subjected. "I was never in my life treated with so little courtesy," he said. "The opposing counsel did not act at all like a gentleman. I expected to receive a different treatment, especially as I learned that he was from Virginia, and he knew I was from that state. No, sir, the old days no Virginia gentleman, sir, would cause another Virginia gentleman the slightest embarrassment because of so paltry a matter, nor would he resort to such interrogatories to make him contradict himself. No, sir, it is unparliamentary, and all for the purpose of increasing the dividends of a few Yankee clients whom he never saw. I am convinced, sir, that the lawyer never came from Virginia at all, sir; he must have come from West Virginia."

TOMB OF MARY AND LAZARUS.

An Interesting Tombstone Discovered in Palestine.

In a recent issue of the Journal of the German Palestine society, Prof. Geizer, of Jena, discussed an interesting tombstone discovered at Casarea, in Palestine, and which first appeared in the Revue Biblique, published at Jerusalem. The inscription reads: "Monument belonging to (or dedicated to) Mary Lazarus." The language is Greek, and the inscription dates from the fourth or fifth century. The original editors, the Dominicans of Jerusalem, thought that it was merely a monument of two persons by the names of Mary and Lazarus. Geizer, however, is of opinion that the Biblical persons of these names were intended, especially also in view of the fact that Mary's name precedes that of Lazarus. He draws attention to the fact that in the first half of the fifth century the discovery of apostles' and prophets' tombs was "a flourishing and manifestly also a lucrative branch of industry." At that period it was claimed that the bodies of Joseph, Samuel, Zachariah, John the Baptist, and other Biblical men were found, and many of these pseudo relics were transported to the capital city of Constantinople. It is not impossible that at this period also the pretended remains of the sister and brother from Bethany were transported to Casarea, which in the ante-Constantinian period—i. e., down to 451—was the metropolitan center of the church in Palestine.

Salt Makes Sugar Sweeter.

Who would think of making sugar sweeter by the addition of salt? Such, however, is asserted to be the case by Prof. Zantz at a late meeting of the Physiological society of Berlin. From his experiments he finds, that if to a solution of sugar there be added a slight amount of salt and water so weak that it excites no saline taste, the result is extra sweetening of the sugared water. The weakest of saline solutions is said to produce a practically similar result. The explanation given of the above seeming incongruity is that the ever so feeble saline or bitter imparts an increased sensibility to the sensation of taste by the simultaneous stimuli, and hence an appreci-

TRAMP'S STORY.

Their Thoughtfulness Narrowly Averts a Collision.

That is Why Our Engineer Always Has a Warm Spot in His Heart for the Knights of the Road—A Milwaukee Escape.

"I don't mind seeing tramps riding on my train," said an old freight engineer. "You see I have a warm spot in my heart for the knights of the road, and I don't think the average tramp is half as bad as he is painted. We ought to do something to reform these fellows, and it ought to be done in a kindly way. The reason why I like the tramp is because I owe my being alive at this moment to about twenty of them. How did they save my life? Well, it was this way: I was running a freight engine on the Chicago division of the Panhandle when the incident I am going to relate occurred. I had fifty 413 at the head of thirty-five cars of stock one dark night, and was howling along on the smooth level track between English Lake and Royal Center, when we had to stop to cool off a hot box. We had no air brakes on freight cars in those days, and the stopping of a long, heavy train took considerable time. Well, when we got started again I put on a full head of steam, and went down through the little town of Denham at a forty-five-mile-an-hour pace, but were stopped by a red light at Royal Center, and got orders to wait for a westbound fast freight at the top of the Logansport hill.

"If you have ever been over the Chicago division you noticed the long, steep hill above Logansport. Well, to be brief when I got to where I ought to have stopped, I forgot my orders. The air brake pump was the cause, for it was leaking, and I was thinking I would report it to the roundhouse men at Logansport. Well, when I remembered of the order to stop, and was sliding, I was going down the hill at a thirty-mile-an-hour gait. I had no sooner thought of my awful error when the fireman shouted: 'Stop her, man; for God's sake stop!' He had reason to be excited, for right ahead of us coaling up the hill, assisted by a pump and a long line of men making the sparks fly, was the fast freight. I pulled the whistle, and the old 413 let out a long, startling, despairing shriek for brakes. At the same time I plugged her and put on the sand. I knew we could not get those two trains to stop in time enough to give us any chance for our lives, so we got down on the steps, prepared to jump, but the high, steep bank was too much for us, and instead of jumping we started to run back over the cars. I wondered what was going to happen to the speed of our train when I reached the second car, but the mystery was explained when I saw a man at every brake screwing up the wheels as if the very devil was making him to do it. Well, do you know that we got the train stopped just as the westbound train's engine pumped ours, and there was not much damage done. What stopped us? Why, the fact of the matter was that when we stopped to cool off that box some twenty-five tramps boarded the train and were sitting on top of the cars. When they saw what I was whistling about they took to setting the brakes, and no train was ever stopped by air as then fellows stopped that freight. When they saw that a terrible collision had been averted they began to cheer like demons, and I could not help but join in and cheer too. That's how the tramps saved my life, and that's why I have a kind of tender spot in my heart for the knights of the road."—Pittsburgh Post.

A Girl's Bicycle Feat.

Miss Belle Steele, of Deposit, N. Y., is a bloomer girl, whose courage is not lacking, even in dangerous places. During the last two weeks ten wheelmen have fallen into the canal while trying to pass on the wide towpath underneath the old white bridge at Traceyville. It was thought to be a hoodooed spot for cyclists. But Miss Steele, as a taut for the male riders, declared she would pass under the bridge on her wheel six times, within one foot of the water's edge, for a wager of ten dollars. The money being put up, she undertook the feat on Wednesday night. The six trips were made in less than ten minutes, the rider going within a few inches of the water's edge each time. A big crowd turned out to see the new woman dissipate a superstitious notion of the men, and they were delighted when the plucky wheelwoman got the money.—Buffalo Express.

When Forks Were Manufactured.

Two-pronged forks were made at Sheffield in 1608. Three-pronged forks were manufactured in England and on the continent in 1750, and silver forks did not come, either in England or in France, until 1814.

SHOOTING INTO SPEAKING.

Patsy Was Dumb Until Hit by Bird Shot.

Patsy Blatter has long been known as "the dummy fisherman" of the sea wall. As a boy, says the New York Press, his hearing was defective and he never learned to talk with anything but his fingers. He was more than usually intelligent, and his parents were always looking for some way of loosening his tongue, but so long as he could not hear other sounds there was no chance of his imitating them.

One day Patsy and another fellow were out in a boat duck hunting, and something happened that furnished the looked-for shaking up of the nervous faculties of the long-tongued youth. After shooting into a flock of ducks, in the haste to row out after the game he had shot he climbed over his companion's gun and discharged it. The shot went over his head, but so close that several small pieces of lead lodged in his shoulder.

Just what took place in the wounded man's mind, or what was the immediate influence that it had over his system science would go a long way to find out, for when the noise of the discharge died away, his companion was astonished to hear him shout "duck!" in an almost natural tone of voice. It was the first word he had ever spoken.

The words made by the shots were quite severe, but they did not lead to create the interest that was felt in his learning to speak. Little by little, with painful slowness, he soon began to use other words, not enough to make really connected conversation possible, but it was speech for all that, and there was promise of anything, too, so long as he could use any words at all.

The duckshot that had benighted in Patsy's shoulder pained him a good deal, and soon began to work up toward the surface. He went to the Fitch hospital a day or two ago and had them taken out. He made a very favorable impression on the doctors, who were naturally much interested in such a peculiar case. Patsy did not try to speak, but used the finger alphabet. The bandages did not feel just right after the operation was over, and to call attention to them he did nothing but fairly frightened his companion. He whistled.

This had been his way of making his wants known from childhood, but as soon as he had begun to talk he had given it up, and had not whistled for quite a long time. The operation was finished to his satisfaction, and he went back to his home on the sea wall, but he does not speak now at all.

Courage and Tenderness Combined.

Here's a story of a girl whose courage brought the blush of shame to a number of strong men. A trolley was the People's Traction company of Philadelphia while bowling along Germantown avenue, near Ontario street, the other morning, struck a small dog. The animal rolled under the car and became wedged between the motor box and the truck frame. The car was stopped and the poor dog lay there, howling pitifully. It was found to be impossible to extricate the dog from the outside, and the conductor accordingly went into the car and lifted the trap in the floor. The dog lay directly under the opening, with his mouth open wide in agony. At the sight of the dog the conductor's courage forsook him, and he gave up his intention of extricating the poor brute. There were about forty-five people in the car, two-thirds men, and five of them policemen. None of these men, however, offered to relieve the dog's suffering. A pretty young woman who sat near the open trap appealed to the men to take the dog out. No one responded, and so she stooped down herself and lifted the dog carefully from under the truck. The other women applauded her loudly, and the men joined in rather sheepishly.

Silver Vases for Heroism.

Hereafter the government will recognize acts of heroism on the high seas in behalf of citizens of the United States by the award of handsome silver vases instead of gold watches, compasses, etc., as has been the custom in the past. It has frequently happened that these watches, fine though they are, have been bestowed upon mariners possessing chronometers of a much superior quality. The same is true of other navigating apparatus which it has been customary to give in acknowledgment of valuable heroic service to American seamen. The state department officials, who have charge of this matter, have decided to substitute vases for other articles as an experiment, and, if it proves successful, that style of award will be adopted as the standard. The design most favored is a tall vase, embossed at the base in imitation of dashing waves, with an American eagle surmounting a shield inscribed with the American coat of arms.—Washington Star.

GREAT COLONIZERS.

The Foreign Possessions of Some European Nations.

England, Holland and Portugal Claim More Subjects Abroad Than at Home—Australia the Only Great Power Without a Colony.

The declaration of the Italian minister of foreign affairs to the Italian chamber of deputies in Rome recently that all the European powers except France and Russia had agreed that no other government was authorized to interfere with the Italian protectorate over Abyssinia, recalls the fact that the ambition of many Italians to establish governmental colonies is soon to be realized. Since the establishment of the Italian capital in Rome in 1870, says the New York Sun, Italy has been contributing largely to the foreign emigration to the United States, the Argentine Republic, France, Brazil and the northern African states. By the census of 1870 there were only 17,000 Italians in the United States. In 1890 the number had risen to 44,000 and in 1890 to 132,000.

Many Italians have long felt the need, for commercial purposes, of colonies over which the Italian flag might fly and the Italian government exercise jurisdiction. Abyssinia has seemed to furnish the coveted opportunity for colonization, and now Italy, after a military occupation of the country, is about to extend its power further over the country of King Menelik. The area of Abyssinia is 189,000 square miles, or about 50 per cent. greater than the area of Italy. The population of that part of Abyssinia over which the Italians claim jurisdiction is 4,500,000. The present population of Italy is 30,000,000.

France, with a population of 38,000,000, has colonies in various parts of the world with 21,000,000 inhabitants additional. Spain, with a population of 17,000,000, has colonies with 11,000,000 inhabitants additional, but it will not have colonial possessions so large if the patriotic Cubans succeed in their revolt against the Madrid government.

Holland, with a population of 4,500,000, has colonies with a collective population of 29,000,000. Portugal, with a population of less than 5,000,000, has colonies with a population of less than 1,000,000 additional. But these four countries, prominent for centuries as colonizing governments, are completely overshadowed by England. The area of the United Kingdom is 120,000 square miles, but the area of the jurisdiction of the English government is 11,000,000 square miles. The population of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales is 38,000,000. The total population under the jurisdiction of the queen of England is 58,000,000.

When the annexation of Abyssinia to the Italian kingdom is completed, Italy will rank the matter of possessions with Germany, which has some 5,000,000 people within its protectorate in Africa; with Turkey and with Denmark, which have colonies in both North and South America. Austria, one of the greatest monarchies of Europe, is the only one having no foreign colonies.

He Wasn't Scared.

"Funny thing happened in our town," said a suburbanite man the other day. "There is a deaf man living there and a lady who has plenty of nerve. The other night she was left alone for an hour or so. The deaf man called. He rummaged around on the porch, trying to find the doorbell. The lady became alarmed. She got her husband's pistol and ran upstairs. She crept to a window directly over the door and listened. She could hear a man moving about very distinctly. 'Bang! Bang! Bang!' She fired three times. The bullets passed dangerously near the deaf man, but he did not hear the sound of the report. He kept looking for the doorbell, and finding it he gave it a long ring.

"No one came. Finally he grew discouraged and left. As he walked away he was met by several people who had heard the shots. When he was told of his narrow escape, he smiled pleasantly and hurried homeward, increased in his mental constitution."

New England Cities.

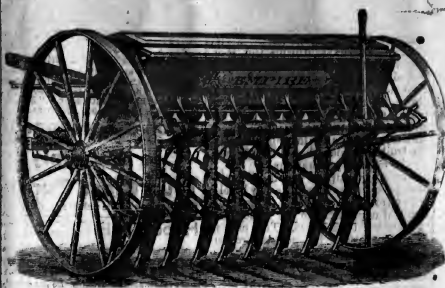

The race for third place among the cities of New England is rather an interesting one. In 1880, according to the federal census of that year, Worcester's population was 84,655 and that of New Haven 81,295, while at the present time each claims a total of 103,069. Lowell is close behind and Fall River, provided its growth is not impeded by unfavorable industrial conditions, will give its slightly larger rivals a tussle for the advantage in the next half decade. Meanwhile Providence retains its old title of the "second city of New England" by a large majority and will pass the 200,000 mark within a very few years, even if none of the current annexation projects get beyond the stage of discussion.

NASHVILLE'S CARNIVAL.

The enterprising citizens of Nashville have secured the great spectacular production, "AMERICAN," which will be presented at Athletic Park, Sept. 24-26-28 and Oct. 1-3-5. This grand open air production has been the reigning success of Cleveland, Cincinnati, Denver Omaha and Des Moines for the past twelve weeks. The company numbers over four hundred people and the three grand ballets are said to be the most magnificent in way of costuming ever seen in any production. The scene is laid in Charlestown, Mass., during the Revolutionary War, and treats of the period that stirred men's hearts and caused mothers to hug their babies closer to their bosoms. It was a period of patriotism, honor and the subversion of all things to—Sweet Liberty—long and lasting Liberty, the fruits of which should be enjoyed by the coming generations.

The stage upon which the city stands covers an area of "a city block" with a frontage of 870 feet. This frontage is the promenade on which the "festivities" took place. The city is in holiday attire; the people are enjoying the gaiety of the honor, little dreaming of the devastation that is soon to follow the happiness which is seen everywhere. The song of Liberty is being sung from every mouth when—the sound of drums are heard in the distance, a moment later an "aid-de-camp" mounted dashes upon the scene to inform the people of the approach of Washington and his army; preparation are at once begun for their reception, when soldiers march in headed by the illustrious General.

Hardly, however, has the ovationary enthusiasm subsided, when Lord Cornwallis with the "English Army" marches in from the opposite side of the city, a truce having been agreed upon for twenty-four hours between the two generals. The people, nothing daunted by these two great combative forces facing each other in such closing proximity, go on with their holiday carnival watched by both armies.

Here is presented a series of terpsichorean pictures, that approach about as near the true sublimity of beauty as it is possible to attain. In headed by the illustrious General. Hardly, however, has the ovationary enthusiasm subsided, when Lord Cornwallis with the "English Army" marches in from the opposite side of the city, a truce having been agreed upon for twenty-four hours between the two generals. The people, nothing daunted by these two great combative forces facing each other in such closing proximity, go on with their holiday carnival watched by both armies.

At this point there will be presented the grandest "Pyrotechnical Display" that has never been exhibited, and will live forever as the grandest Fire Works Exhibit that has ever been presented.

All railroads leading to Nashville will offer special excursion rates on days of exhibitions.

Christopher Columbus Cleveland, aged eighty years, an eccentric citizen of Centerville, O., has just returned from a long and tedious journey in Mexico. Cleveland was a soldier in both the Mexican and civil wars, and has drawn a pension up to the last part of last winter, when for some reason he was cut off the roll. As having funds sufficient to employ an attorney to look after his estate, he determined, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, to walk to Washington and make personal application at the pension department. Before starting upon his trip, however, Cleveland walked first to Des Moines, to visit his mother, and then to the residence of his wife, who was then seventy years of age. This was made in the early part of last January, and he returned to his home on February 12, starting the day following for Washington. He traversed the National road, the eastern terminus of which is Baltimore, and he arrived in Washington in May. His pension papers were examined and found all right, and much to his joy he was returned to the roll. Cleveland did not tarry long in Washington, but started upon his return trip as soon as the pension matter had been arranged to his satisfaction. He stopped in many of the cities along the route where he had friends, and many of them offered to pay his fare home, but he declined their kindness, insisting that his army wounds on the side would be made worse and give him pain should he be jarred by riding. Cleveland is rather frail in appearance, and he undoubtedly holds the record for long-distance walking when his age is taken into consideration.

had been the most useful book to him as a teacher. Christ was the great teacher. Problems presenting great difficulties come up in every district. These the teacher must solve. To do this successfully he must be a man of wisdom. In deciding these questions he must leave the impression that he is making an earnest effort to do the right thing, so he will have the community with him. The teacher must have the requisite authority but must be careful he uses it. If he exercises it in the right spirit, for the good of all, he will have a strong hold on the community. A very essential thing was to have the teacher and trustees act in harmony, then secure the cooperation of the parents. Round your school room attractive and surroundings pleasant. There was much complaint among teachers about meager pay. In his opinion many of the teachers make yourself indispensable to the community, show them that you are worthy of a higher salary and the raise will come. If the teacher has no reward he will not receive one in the great beyond. Proper heating and ventilation, proper food and clothing are also elements of success. Badly constructed seats cause curvature of the spine, badly arranged seats defective vision.

INTERMISSION.

10-40. Prof. Owen then carried a class through a series of exercises in calisthenics. The young ladies did their part admirably and their performance was liberally applauded. Prof. Barnes took up the subject of advanced grammar. He placed a very complete and comprehensive outline of the verb upon the blackboard, and with this illustrated his method of presenting the subject to advanced classes. This proved to be a very clear presentation of the subject. Some discussion of technical points and sentences involving difficult constructions then followed. Miss Shadoin then recited in a very effective manner "Melissa's Opinion of Boys."

EVENING SESSION.

Song, music by Miss Winfree. Roll call. Miss Walker then sang a solo, "The Song That Reached My Heart." The teachers showed their appreciation of her beautiful singing by long and continued applause. Prof. Bartholomew then addressed the Institute. The teacher always held a place socially in the community. He should, therefore, be the very embodiment of courtesy and refinement. This, of course, enlarges his influence. Every eye in the community is upon the teacher. Any deficiency along this line would be quickly noted. The teacher, too, must exercise these qualities in the school-room as well as in society. He must be a gentleman at all times and under all circumstances. Always be correct in manner, neat in dress. He is to be a pattern. The teacher should never be a partisan. He should, of course, exercise his rights as a man and a citizen. It is this discussion of the senses we must remember that all our knowledge comes through the senses. It has been shown you that the best way to study the child is when he is free. Some child you study will be normal in one direction, abnormal in another. Study the child so thoroughly as to be able to develop it into the well rounded man or woman. The most difficult part of this work is with the primary. All honor to the primary teacher. No work comparable to this. Great in results—grand in its rewards.

Physiology was then taken up by Prof. J. G. Wright. He spoke at some length of the great importance of the study. He would place no special limits to oral instructions. He found he could interest beginning classes by presenting the subject under the form of an allegory. The body may be compared to a house, the hair the thatch or roof, the eyes the windows of the soul, the tongue a servant in red velvet, etc. Much useful information could be conveyed in this way. With advanced classes would use outlines. Occasionally lecture the class. Of the three divisions he considered hygiene the most important.

Prof. Rascoe—We should not attempt to make physicians out of our pupils. As teachers we get the idea we must know everything, teach everything. So we get to be superficial—the time allotted to these subjects in common schools is brief, the instruction must be necessarily elementary. We should have better ventilated houses. Trustees should be compelled to breathe vitiated air in

—OF LOTS—

OF THE

Hopper Property.

This excellent property lies on Virginia street, which is entirely built up to these lots.

Did it ever occur to you that Virginia street was bound and compelled to become the best residence street in this city?

Why? Well, for several reasons. The principal of which is that a certain proportion of our people object to living across the river. Another portion object to living in the Eastern portion of the city because they have to cross the railroad. Main street is built up solid as far out as the high ground extends, and there you are!

You are bound to come out and live on Virginia street, for it's the only place left for you to go.

It's Virginia street or nothing.

Go out and look at this magnificent property to-morrow, and we are sure to sell a lot.

Economy is the road to the Hopper property; Virginia street will also take you there, and from all indications in a short time electric cars will be running to this property.

LOOK AHEAD!

Forethought is all that is necessary to make money. I am on the inside, and know whereof I speak, and I can tell you now that within ONE YEAR street cars will be running out Virginia street to this property.

Now is the time to buy.

But are the advance in price gets here.

Remember these lots are 100x213 feet, and that twenty of them face on Virginia street, and the balance on a 60-foot Boulevard that extends through this property parallel with Virginia street for one-half mile.

This is the only 60-foot street in Hopkinsville, and it will eventually become the best residence street in the city.

Buy now, while you can these lots cheap.

You know that nearly all the residences on Virginia street have been erected during the past five years. Look ahead another five years and you will see all these lots built upon and worth four or five times what they will cost you at this sale. The man who can see and won't see should go to the Mayor and get a permit for his own burial in the potter's field.

Let those who are getting sour-faced and weak-kneed day by day through close quarters and tainted air; let those who sigh for fresh air, fresh cheeks and fresh feelings, let those who have missed many a chance and dubbed themselves therefor in their nightly dream; let those who are trudging along in the shades of oppressive rent; let those who flatter themselves into the soothing folly that they know a good thing when they see it; let them join the great procession and visit the

I want to give this Barbecue just to show you people what a Barbecue is. It costs me lots of money, but that "cuts no ice" with me. The only use I've got for money is to spend it, and I had just as well spend it on you as any one else. PRETTY GIRL GOVERNOR.

Miss Richards Rules Wyoming in Her Father's Absence.

She is Chief Executive by Proxy and by Courtesy of the State, Besides Being a Bit of a Feminine Football Player.

The private secretary of Gov. W. A. Richards of Wyoming, is his nineteen-year-old daughter, Miss Eleanor Alice Richards, better known in this community as Miss Richards, writes the Cheyenne correspondent of the New York Herald. Miss Alice not only performs the duties of an amanuensis while her father, the governor, is here, attending to all the correspondence of the governor's office, but during the absence of the governor from the capital from the state she is, to all practical purposes, his representative, and fulfills in a very creditable manner the duties of his office.

Alice was born at Oakland, Cal., just nineteen years ago. As she has never been east of the Missouri river she may be considered a typical western girl. She lived with her parents at Oakland until she was five years old, and then removed with them to Colorado Springs, Col. At the age of ten she went with her parents to live on a big cattle ranch on the banks of the Big Horn river in northern Wyoming. Here for four years she was instructed by her parents, there being no schools in the country. Here, too, she formed the habits of independence and self-reliance which life on the frontier gives to western girls. She learned to ride half-broken cow-ponies and sometimes went on the "round-ups" with her father. She also learned how to keep house in the practical, common-sense way of earlier times.

Mr. Richards, Alice's father, was appointed surveyor general of Wyoming in 1890, and came to Cheyenne to take office. Alice went to school in the Cheyenne public schools for several years and then attended Mills college, near Oakland, Cal., where she graduated last year. Her father, upon his election as governor of Wyoming, gave her a position in his office last January as his private secretary. She was taken on trial, and the trial resulted favorably, and she is pretty certain to hold the position throughout her father's term of office, which does not expire until 1900. Miss Alice is an expert stenographer and typewriter. To add her in performing the duties of her office with satisfaction she has devoted her spare time to studying law, paying particular attention to the constitution and statutes of Wyoming.

Early in July Gov. Richards and his wife attended the interstate drill of the national guard in St. Louis, and during their absence Alice was the only manager of the business of the governor's office, but was at the head of the household affairs. She was where there were three younger children. While the secretary of state is, during the absence of the governor, acting as chief executive, she is also acting as chief of the household.

WITTEN MOUNTS AN OSTRICH.

In the course of the day, the witten mounts an ostrich. The ostrich at the Philadelphia Zoological garden stood in the long yard adjoining its cage in the deerhouse the other day. It was completely through the bars of the fence at the world beyond, and shivered once in awhile as the cool breezes swept down upon it. A playful kitten came to the fence into the yard. The kitten was running along the yard until it came to the ostrich. Thinking its long thin legs were young sprigs, it quickly climbed up them, and was soon on top of the ostrich's back. The huge bird did not know what to do with the playful kitten. It was a real and quick climb up the wrong tree, but it was determined to see the matter out. The ostrich almost a blow at the rider, but the cat dodged. It was a real and quick climb up the wrong tree, but it was determined to see the matter out. EARLIEST OF ROSES.

The Provence or Cabbage Rose Described by Herodotus. In a learned article on roses the Quarterly Review says: "The earliest traces in Greek literature of the rose as a cultivated flower are to be found in Herodotus, in his account of the rise of the house of Macedonia. The sons of Temenus, he says (book iii., 138), and into Macedonia, Macedonia, and took up their abode 'near the gardens of Midas.' In these gardens, as he says, they grew themselves—that is, we suppose, without much attention to pruning or budding—"so sweet that no others can vie with them in the perfume. The blossoms have as many as sixty petals open. Every rosegrower will at once recognize in this the most venerable of all roses, the original rose of the folla, still more than two thousand years afterward one of the sweetest in many a cold English garden—the old Provence or cabbage rose. It is a curious illustration of Herodotus's accuracy in unsuspected details that Pliny describes the same rose as found growing in the neighborhood of Philadelphia in the neighborhood of Philippi, the people of which, he says, get it from the neighboring Mount Pangaea, and greatly improve it by transplanting. In the long 'History of roses the Provence or hundred-leaved rose seems chiefly to have formed the backbone of continuity."

LOST FOR AGES.

Discovery of a Buried City in Turkistan by a Party of Frankish. In Turkistan on the right bank of the Amou Darya, in a chain of rocky hills, near the Bokharan town of Karkit, are a number of large caves which, upon examination, were found to lead to an underground city, built apparently long before the Christian era. According to legends, says Information, descriptions and designs upon the gold and silver money unearthed from among the ruins, the excavated city dates back to some two centuries before the birth of Christ.

The underground Bokharan city is situated in a long and is composed of an enormous labyrinth of corridors, streets and squares, surrounded by houses and other buildings two or three stories high. The edifices contain all kinds of domestic utensils, pots, vases and so forth. In some of the streets full of earth and rock have been discovered the passages, but generally the visitor can walk about freely without lowering his head. The high degree of civilization attained by the inhabitants of the city is shown by the fact that they built in several stories, by the symmetry of the streets and squares, and by the beauty of the clay and metal utensils and of the ornaments and furniture.

Draining a Lake.

The project of some anonymous gentleman of draining the lake of the Transalpine lake, which has been talked about for more than two thousand years, with at least one fact. A syndicate of capitalists has been organized to undertake the work. The lake, which is situated in the mountains of the Alps, is a large lake, and the drainage of the lake is a very difficult task. The project is to drain the lake by a series of canals and ditches, and the work is to be completed in a few years.

Near the battlefield of Marathon, in Greece, a prehistoric burial mound recently exposed yielded a number of Mycenaean vases, two of them gold, and some gold earrings. At a place called Agia, where the Greeks were driven back by the Persians, a bronze helmet has been found, and at Agia, where the Greeks were driven back by the Persians, a bronze helmet has been found, and at Agia, where the Greeks were driven back by the Persians, a bronze helmet has been found.

Mr. A. L. Shasta, Kingston, Ga., writes, May 31st, 1896: "I was troubled with Dyspepsia for twenty-five years, and could get no permanent relief from any treatment or medicine until I began the use of King's Royal Dispepsia Cure. After five years' use, it gave me great relief, and after the lapse of five years, I can recommend it as the best medicine I know of for indigestion and Dyspepsia. The case is but one out of thousands which prove that indigestion, dyspepsia and stomach troubles, Germanic cure when all else fails. One package, large bottle, 108 doses, $1. For sale R. C. GOOD FOR INDIGESTION.

"We were very much pleased with the paper dolls which were sent for our little mark from the King's Royal Dispepsia Cure. I have used Hood's Pills and think they are excellent for indigestion and recommend them to all who suffer from that complaint."—Ola Oak, Okla., Ky.

Hood's Pills cure indigestion, biliousness.

Hon. Chauncey M. Depew is trying to reconcile the warring factions of the Vanderbilt family.

When you have a "touch of liver" don't take one of the ordinary liver pills, of which there are a dozen kinds in every drug store, but ask your druggist especially for Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills (and Pellets). He will give you two medicines, one of which cleans out the system and removes all the secreted bile, while the other purifies the blood, restores strength, builds up the appetite and makes you feel like a new person. Free. Only 25 cents for both—Sample dose free.

ENORMOUS HEAT.

A Figure Which Demonstrates the Power of the Sun.

There is not more than one person in each ten thousand who has anything like the correct idea what an idle forty-five miles in diameter and two hundred thousand in length would look like. It is also true, says the St. Louis Republic, that there is no necessity for one being provided with a mind that would enable him to form a correct conception of such a gigantic cylinder of ice, for there is no probability that anyone will ever live to see an idle even half so large, yet it is interesting to know that Sir John Lubbock, the great astronomer, used such an illustration in one of his articles on the intensity of the sun's heat. After giving the diameter of the sun, he gave the diameter of the earth, and a calculation on the amount of heat radiated by each square foot of its immense surface, he closed by saying that if it were possible for an idle forty-five miles in diameter and two hundred thousand miles long to plunge into the sun's burning surface, it would contain more heat than had formed on the rivers and lakes of the United States during the past one hundred years; its base would cover the average Atlantic country, and its length would be almost sufficient to reach to the moon.

Adam's Nose.

A Sunday-school superintendent at the close of an address on the creation, which he was sure he had kept within the comprehension of the least scholars, smilingly invited questions, says the Amusing Journal.

A lay boy with a white, eager face and large brow, at once held up his hand. "Please, sir, why was Adam never a baby?"

The superintendent coughed in some doubt as to what answer to give, but a little girl of nine, the eldest of several children and sisters, came promptly to his aid.

"Please, sir," she said, smartly, "there was nobody to nurse him!"

CURED BY ELECTROPOISE.

A LADY WHO SUFFERED DEATH ALMOST FROM NEURALGIC HEADACHE.

I received Neuralgic Headache, and in a certain way, I was cured by the use of the Electro-Poise.

I will say my wife suffered death with neuralgic headache for years and the Electro-Poise has almost cured her. It is a relief to me, and every time, and I do not doubt, but that persistent use will entirely cure that trouble. I have used it for ordinary fevers on our children of 3 to 6 years of age with most marked success. Thirty-six hours usually resulting in a decided cure.

For myself, I have had occasion to treat for violent attacks of a gripe, broke it up completely in forty-eight hours, an hour's treatment between the eyes and all night treatment at high power on the head, and the next day the Electro-Poise is the sovereign remedy for colds and all forms of prostration from overwork. Yours truly, R. B. SANDERS.

For ten to twenty-four months, with the use of the Electro-Poise, I have been cured of my neuralgic headache. I have used it for many years, and it has cured me of my neuralgic headache. I have used it for many years, and it has cured me of my neuralgic headache. I have used it for many years, and it has cured me of my neuralgic headache.

It is not sold until fully matured, and until the fuel oil has been eliminated. Indeed, we challenge any chemist to find a drop of fuel oil in a barrel of it when we put it on the market.

It is especially commended for medicinal purposes, on account of its purity, while as a beverage was unhesitatingly assert that it is superior to the finest French Cognac.
